

Attempt Made to Stop Bloodshed

Britain Takes Direct Rule in Ireland

BOMBING AFTERMATH—Rescue workers sift through wreckage and debris in main shopping district of this seaside resort Carrickfergus, N. Ireland Thursday after a suspected IRA terrorist bomb exploded, injuring 12 persons. Carrickfergus, about 10 miles northeast of Belfast, has been relatively free of the violence which has swept this divided country over past two years. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

LONDON (UPI) -- Prime Minister Edward Heath announced today that Britain will assume direct rule over Northern Ireland for at least one year in an attempt to stop the bloodshed that has torn the province since 1969.

He said the first of a series of plebiscites in Northern Ireland to determine whether its 1.5 million citizens want to join the Irish Republic in the south "will be held as soon as practicable in the near future." Two-thirds of the Northern Ireland population is Protestant while one-third is Roman Catholic.

Heath, in a speech to parliament, said he will introduce legislation necessary to carry out his plans before Easter, April 2. Opposition labor leader Harold Wilson immediately pledged his party's support, ensuring quick passage of the legislation.

"We remain determined to find means of ensuring for the minority, as well as the majority community, an active, permanent and guaranteed role in life and public affairs of the province," Heath said.

Claims by Northern Ireland's Roman Catholics that the majority Protestants have denied them equal rights in the running of the country was the main issue that touched off the bloody fighting that has claimed 266 lives in three years.

The British prime minister said the imposition of direct rule will expire after one year unless the British parliament decides otherwise.

He announced that William Whitelaw, 54, lord president of the House of Commons, will be named to the new post of secretary of state for Northern Ireland.

Heath said the government decided to impose direct rule after talks with Northern Ireland Premier Brian Faulkner were deadlocked.

Heath said he told Faulkner the British government wants to start phasing out internment without trial of suspected Irish Republican army IRA members.

He also told Faulkner responsibility for law and order should be transferred to the British government, Heath said.

Faulkner told him if such a proposal went through, the Northern Ireland government would resign the British prime minister said.

Heath said the legislation will transfer all legislative and executive powers now vested in the Northern Ireland parliament to the British parliament.

The Northern Ireland parliament will be suspended but not dissolved. He said Faulkner will remain in office until the legislation is passed.

Heath's office announced he will broadcast to the nation on radio and television later today.

Political sources said a British takeover became all but certain when two rounds of talks in 24 hours between Heath and Northern Ireland Premier Brian Faulkner on a British peace package for Ulster ended in deadlock.

The talks were held under the shadow of a reported ultimatum by Faulkner and his entire cabinet that they would quit if Britain insisted on taking over responsibility for security in the province as part of its long awaited political proposals. They reportedly also objected to a British plan for gradual phasing out of jailing without trial of suspected gunmen.

The two premiers conferred for nearly 10 hours Wednesday at Heath's No. 10 Downing St. office. Faulkner flew back to Belfast and held two crucial meetings with his cabinet Thursday.

According to political sources in Belfast, Faulkner's cabinet decided unanimously to reject the British demand and to threaten resignation if the British continued to insist.

Heath, meantime, met Thursday with his own cabinet and later with key government ministers. Political sources said the British decided to stand firm despite Faulkner's ultimatum.

Meanwhile, in Belfast, British troops shot and killed a 13-year-old youth they said attacked them with a gasoline bomb Thursday night, an army spokesman said.

The spokesman said soldiers shot the boy when he and two other youths opened fire on the troops in the Lower Falls area and began hurling gasoline bombs at them. The spokesman said the youth died later in the hospital.

Protestant and Roman Catholic vigilantes took to their barricades in Belfast today in increasing numbers in anticipation of a new phase of violence in Northern Ireland. Scores of vigilantes manned barricades in the city's Catholic areas, including the Lower Falls district where the boy was killed.

'Civil War Is Inevitable', Claim Ulster Church Leaders

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — The reaction to the plan for direct English control of Ulster, as announced by Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath, from Protestants and Catholics in Northern Ireland was immediate — both sides rejected the Prime Minister's solution. Thousands of shouting shipyard workers marched through Belfast in a demonstration of Protestant rejection of direct rule from London.

Protestant leaders in Belfast said that civil war was now inevitable. Frazer Agnew, Belfast chairman of the Young Unionist party organization, a Protestant group, said Heath's measures represented a betrayal of Ulster and a surrender to the IRA. He said "this act of betrayal to Ulster Loyalists has hastened the inevitability of civil war."

Sean MacStiofain, chief of staff of the militant provisional IRA, rejected any truce while the Heath proposals are enforced and said IRA operations will continue until the last British soldier withdraws from Northern Ireland. Despite the fears thousands of shouting Protestant shipyard workers marched through Belfast without incident, cheered by office workers and others who poured into the streets.

Ranked four abreast, still in their overalls and with red, white and blue berets on their heads, a contingent of workers estimated by police at 6,000 put down tools at the Harland and Wolff shipyards and marched to the center of Belfast. The Protestant Shankill Road district echoed with shouts of "no surrender," "we've had enough" and "we want Craig," a reference to rightwing former Home Affairs Minister William Craig, now head of the militant Protestant Ulster Vanguard Movement.

MacStiofain said IRA "operations will continue until there is a complete withdrawal of British troops from the streets of Northern Ireland." He said direct rule from London would "make it clear to the Irish people who the enemy is."

Northern Ireland, a province made up of six counties called Ulster, has been an integral part of the United Kingdom with limited internal self-government since 1920. The Belfast government was controlled by Protestants during that period.

The Catholic minority said this government has discriminated against it in jobs, housing and other matters and the bitter feeling erupted in violence in 1969. The IRA, which is outlawed both in Northern Ireland and in the Republic of Ireland, unleashed violence which it hoped would return the six northern counties to Ireland.

The situation in Northern Ireland appeared to be growing grimmer by the minute, and a spokesman for the militant Protestant Ulster Vanguard Movement, which claims 200,000 members, said it would fight direct rule all the way.

Both Catholics and Protestants began manning the street barricades they put up at the height of recent rioting.

There was positive reaction from Dublin. Spokesmen for major political parties said they welcomed Heath's move.

and political sources said Irish Republican Premier Jack Lynch might fly to London for talks with Heath on the Ulster crisis.

Four Businessmen Must Be Fired

Nixon Ponders Board Balance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new "public" Pay Board set a rare Friday meeting for today as President Nixon pondered which four businessmen he must fire to balance four union defections.

United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock left the board Thursday as Nixon announced his plans to reshape the board.

Woodcock, the fourth labor member to resign in two days, called for a congressional investigation of the whole wage-price control effort. House Banking Committee Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., said he might get one.

The President said he will keep the present five public members of the board, plus just enough businessmen to balance whatever union members wish to stay. Woodcock resigned at almost the same time Nixon spoke, leaving Teamsters Union President Frank E. Fitzsimmons the sole representative of organized labor on the board.

The new board will have seven members: Fitzsimmons, the five public members, and whichever of the present five business members Nixon chooses. The White House said it didn't know who the choice would be or when the decision would be made.

Director George Shultz of the Office of Management and Budget said all seven members would be considered public members, although the union and business representatives would be expected to stand up for their particular views.

The President, who personally announced his plans to newsmen after outlining them to a special session of the Council of Living Council, severely criticized AFL-CIO President George Meany, who walked off the board Wednesday with two AFL-CIO colleagues.

Nixon said Meany's resignation had been prompted by the Pay Board's rejection of a 20.9-per-cent first-year pay raise for West Coast longshoremen.

"The Pay Board was right," Nixon said. "Mr. Meany was wrong."

He said he respected Meany as a labor leader, but added: "As President, I cannot permit any leader representing a special interest, no matter how powerful, to torpedo and sink a program that is needed to protect the public interest."

In reshaping the board as a body representative of only the public, Nixon abandoned the concept demanded earlier by Meany—that the board have public, labor and business members.

The new, whittled-down shape of the Pay Board may give it a stiffer policy toward individual wage settlements. Had the public members prevailed, for example, a 16.8-per-cent first-year raise for soft-coal miners would have been cut back somewhat in the board's first wage decision last year.

On many past issues, however, public members have sided with labor members.

Woodcock announced his resignation after a meeting of the UAW executive council in Detroit.

He said the wage-price control program is scandalous and unfair, and hasn't controlled inflation or reduced unemployment. He said wages have been controlled rigidly while profits have been allowed to soar, charges similar to those leveled by Meany.

Woodcock spoke just hours after the Labor Department announced that the cost of living rose 0.5 per cent last month, the highest monthly increase since before the Aug. 15 wage-price freeze.

Ranking four abreast, still in their overalls and with red, white and blue berets on their heads, a contingent of workers estimated by police at 6,000 put down tools at the Harland and Wolff shipyards and marched to the center of Belfast. The Protestant Shankill Road district echoed with shouts of "no surrender," "we've had enough" and "we want Craig," a reference to rightwing former Home Affairs Minister William Craig, now head of the militant Protestant Ulster Vanguard Movement.

MacStiofain said IRA "operations will continue until there is a complete withdrawal of British troops from the streets of Northern Ireland." He said direct rule from London would "make it clear to the Irish people who the enemy is."

(UPI TELEPHOTO)

Three Students Killed in Crash As Freight Train Rips School Bus

(By Combined Wire Services)

CONGERS, N. Y. — A Penn Central freight train ripped a school bus in half today at a remote grade crossing, killing at least three of the 50 high school students reported aboard. The dead were reported to have been pinned beneath the train.

The accident at about 7:55 a.m. in the Clarkstown section of Congers occurred at what a railroad spokesman described as a "private" crossing with no warning bells, lights or gates. The scene is in Rockland County some 25 miles northwest of New York City.

The bus was carrying students from the South Congers area to Nyack High School when it was struck by the train.

Patrolman Don Cocker of the Clarkstown police said five of the injured students had limbs amputated in the accident and at least 40 injured students were taken to Nyack Hospital.

Anguished parents crowded the hospital lobby as mothers sobbed, "Is my child here?"

Cocker said police had been unable to question the driver, who was also hospitalized, but it was believed the bus was moving when it was struck by the train at a crossing marked with a sign but without crossing barriers.

Two students were pronounced dead at the scene, police said, and a third died later at a nearby hospital.

Ned Meara, who lives near the crossing, said the bus was "a tangled mess of steel" after the collision with the three-engine, 83-car train.

Arthur Harrison, the spokesman said the crossing was not at a federal, state or county road and that he could not immediately determine the ownership.

Witnesses said the 83-car train bound from Weehawkin, N.J., to Selkirk, N.Y., slammed into the school bus broadside, leaving the rear of the bus at the crossing and pushing the front section a quarter-mile.

The accident left the bus a tangle of twisted metal. Strwn books, lunches and dead or injured young victims who had been headed for nearby Nyack High School created such a horrifying spectacle that area residents with blankets and first aid supplies kept their distance.

One fireman, who was not identified, walked dazed along the tracks, picking up school books with tears streaming down his face as he repeated again and again, "What a shame."

A spokesman at Nyack Hospital, where the victims were rushed said at least 30 of the students were injured, some of them seriously.

A mutual aid volunteer fire department alarm was sounded, and emergency crews used acetylene torches to pry the victims from the school bus, that began its journey to Nyack in this community's hamlet of Valley Cottage.

Residents told newsmen that they have been seeking a signal at the crossing for two years.

A spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board said in Washington that three investigators were headed here

Vietnam Peace Talks Near Collapse

PARIS (UPI)—The Vietnam peace talks, begun 38 months ago in high hopes and with a bombing halt over North Vietnam, are near total breakdown.

This was signaled Thursday by U.S. negotiator William J. Porter, who told North Vietnamese and Viet Cong officials that the United States has no intention of meeting them next week, as it has most Thursdays since Jan. 29, 1969.

Porter said U.S. willingness to meet after next week depended on what the Communists had to offer—a warning that if chief Viet Cong negotiator Madame Nguyen Thi Binh returned to Paris with another "take-it-or-leave-it" peace package, the United States was not interested.

Madame Binh was due in Paris today after a seven-month absence in Hanoi. She returned via Peking and Moscow.

Porter's stand immediately was endorsed by Saigon delegation leader, Pham Dang Lam. Porter is the fourth U.S.

negotiating deadlock in just over three years.

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, who negotiated the bombing halt that paved the way for the talks, was replaced by Republican Henry Cabot Lodge when the conferences started shortly after President Nixon's inauguration in 1969.

Lodge was followed by David K.E. Bruce, who had served as President Kennedy's ambassador in London. Bruce retired from diplomacy after a year.

Since the arrival in Paris of Porter, an English-born career diplomat, the U.S. stance toward Hanoi and the Viet Cong noticeably has stiffened.

The third Communist package was submitted to the conference July 1, but like the rest it demanded unconditional U.S. and South Vietnamese acceptance of two "inseparable" points as the price for an end to the shooting.

These were that the United States name a date for total withdrawal of all U.S. and allied forces, and that the United States preside over removal from office of South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu and the organizations.

The United States replied that it was not going to hand South Vietnam to the Viet Cong on a platter, and urged free elections.

The Communists rejected elections under the present setup in South Vietnam on the grounds that they would be decided by the bayonets of the U.S. Army and the security police of Thieu.

Also, the Communists continually have turned a deaf ear to U.S. pleas to discuss the prisoner of war issue. Whether and when the talks will continue remains the question.

Meanwhile, in Vietnam Communists set off a bomb on one of Phnom Penh's major bridges today, blowing a gaping hole in the structure and isolating the city from an outlying navy base.

The explosion, which occurred shortly after noon on the only bridge across the Tonle Sap River, killed at least two persons and injured four others. Three men were arrested and held for questioning.

FOUND GUILTY — State Supreme Court judge-elect Seymour Thaler arrives Thursday at Federal Court in New York City where he was found guilty of possessing and transporting $800,000 in stolen U. S. treasury notes. Thaler, a former state senator, shuddered and slumped in his chair when the verdict was announced. (UPI)

Appeals Court Upholds OTB

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The decision of the Court of Appeals in upholding the constitutionality of the state's off-track betting law was hardly a ringing endorsement of the law. The court split 4-3 on the matter Thursday, and the dissenting judges strongly advised changes in the law.

Judge Adrian Burke worried that the proliferation of off-track betting operations would harm the racing industry by taking away attendance and reducing wagering at the track. He suggested that the state take over all off-track betting operations. "If off-track betting is completely controlled by the state," he wrote, "the state could see to it that there would be an equitable apportionment between the racing industry and the state by adjusting the purses."

This is precisely what New York City and other localities do not want. Nor are they in favor of a moratorium on all new OTB applications, as Gov.

Nelson A. Rockefeller has suggested. Burke was supported by Judge James Gibson and Chief Judge Stanley Fuld in his dissent. Fuld, in a separate opinion, added that the current compensation to the tracks is so woefully inadequate that it amounts to the taking of property without due process of law.

This was one of the arguments used by four racetrack operators in contesting the law. The arguments were made by George Morton Levy, president of Roosevelt Raceway, representing Monticello Raceway; William D. Kiley of Vernon Downs; Ernest B. Morris of Saratoga Raceway and Frank G. Rachle of the Finger Lakes Race Track. The argument failed to persuade Judges Francis Bergan, Charles D. Breitell, Matthew J. Jasen and John F. Scileppi.

"The off-track pari-mutuel statute does, indeed, attempt to compensate the racetrack owners for the use of their facilities," said Bergan, who wrote the majority opinion. "The arrangement seems reasonably fair. It is not grossly unjust or unreasonable."

He noted that race tracks operate under a peculiar constitutional disability in the state. The state constitution prohibits any gambling except lottery and pari-mutuel betting on horses as the legislature may prescribe.

"Continuance of this kind of business depends on legislative permission, and this permission may be conditioned and the imposed conditions altered from time to time according to the legislative view of fairness," he wrote.

"The legislature could probably not be grossly destructive of investments of time and money made on faith of past permission, but it should be able to reapportion the profit results of the gambling business, including the allocation of a greater share for public benefit."

Government Rests Case On Harrisburg Seven

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — After presenting testimony from 64 witnesses, the government has rested its bomb-kidnap conspiracy case against antiwar priest Philip Berrigan and six others.

Today the defense presses motions for directed verdicts of acquittal.

"The government has failed to prove that there has been any conspiracy," said attorney Paul O'Dwyer, a member of the six-man defense team headed by former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark.

"They didn't prove there was a plot to kidnap the President's advisor, Henry Kissinger, and they didn't prove a plan to blow up government property," O'Dwyer said.

Chief prosecutor William Lynch said, "The evidence is overwhelming that they are guilty."

In a memorandum to U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman, the defendants accused the government of violating their constitutional rights by "proceeding against them in bad faith." They said they would introduce evidence to show this was deliberate discrimination.

"They are being prosecuted not for their conduct alone, but principally to vindicate the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Justice Department of the United States," the 24-page memo said.

"That animus and, indeed, malice arose because of the defendants' conscientious outrage at the government's war in Indochina, and because of their outspoken dedication to civil disobedience as a way of bringing the war to a halt."

Lynch called the defense claim of discriminatory prosecution ridiculous. Berrigan and the others are charged with conspiring in 1970 to kidnap White House aide Kissinger, blow up tunnels that carry steam heat to federal buildings in Washington, and vandalize Selective Service offices in at least nine states.

"They have proved there have been draft board raids, which we never denied, but they have not proved these were part of any conspiracy, which we do deny," O'Dwyer said.

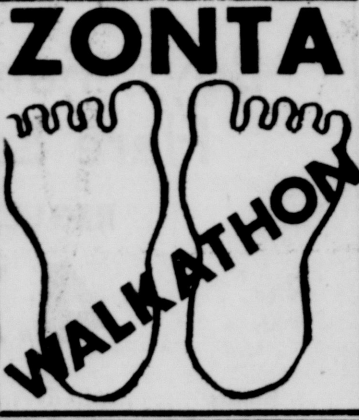

The government rested its case after 24 days of testimony, one day short of the ninth week of the trial.

Thursday's final three government witnesses were all from the FBI, making it 21 agents put on by the government.

Palmer G. Tunstall, a handwriting expert, first authenticated letters exchanged between Berrigan and another defendant, Sister Elizabeth McAlister, concerning the alleged Kissinger kidnap plot.

The letters were copied by paid informer Boyd Douglas Jr., while he served as courier for Berrigan during the spring and summer of 1970. Both were inmates at the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa.

Fingerprint experts linked three defendants to other facets of the government's case—Sister Elizabeth to a draft board raid in Delaware in June 1970, and two other Catholic priests, the Revs. Joseph Wenderoth and Neil McLaughlin to the alleged tunnel project.

Rockefeller's Austerity Spending Sliced

$30 Million Budget Cuts Proposed

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York legislature's money experts have proposed $30 million in cuts in Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's proposed 1972-73 state budget, slicing a little off the $7.9-billion austerity spending program he proposed.

The Republican chairman of the Senate finance committee, Sen. Warren Anderson of Binghamton, said Republicans had accepted the trimmed version "in general terms."

After lengthy conferences Thursday afternoon, Anderson said, "I would guess no one was completely satisfied, including me. But we all have to compromise."

The compromise would knock out a proposed "maxi-maxi" prison and $410 million for the pure-waters program, trim the appropriation for a commission investigating the New York City government and soften the austerity bite for mental hygiene and narcotics education programs.

Rockefeller's budget director, Richard Dunham, Thursday night responded to the move: "In my opinion, the net effect of proposed changes in the executive budget, including the latest estimates of revenues and expenditures, should result in a net savings of about $5 million, and when we get the new federal aid, we will have a balanced budget."

New York State stands to get $391 million in federal aid during fiscal 1972-73 under a revenue-sharing plan endorsed Wednesday by the ways and means committee of the U.S. House. Localities in the state altogether would separately get almost as much.

The Rockefeller budget contains a revenue line of $400 million in expected federal aid.

Assembly Speaker Perry Duryea, R-Montauk, and Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges, R-Niagara Falls, said they hope to get their $7.87-billion budget adopted before the legislature leaves for an Easter-Passover recess next Wednesday.

The latest version of the spending program for the fiscal year beginning April 1 carries the essence of an agreement Democrats got from the Rockefeller administration before they supported tax increases during the special session earlier this year.

That agreement called for no reductions in appropriations for narcotics education programs in schools and for mental health.

Both areas would get more money — $4 million more for narcotics education and $12 million more for mental health.

The legislature's version of the budget contains no major program cuts. It manages to trim some appropriations by switching programs to other portions of the budget, and by making little reductions here and there.

The legislators took two major projects out of the capitol construction portion of the Rockefeller budget: $60 million for the maximum-maximum security prison for the toughest, most incorrigible state-prison inmates, and $410 million for local water-quality projects.

The budget experts said the Department of Correctional Services had not come up with final specifications on its capitol construction proposal, so they were taking out that money.

The water-quality spending could be put back in the budget if a $1.2-billion environmental bond issue gets on the ballot and is approved by voters.

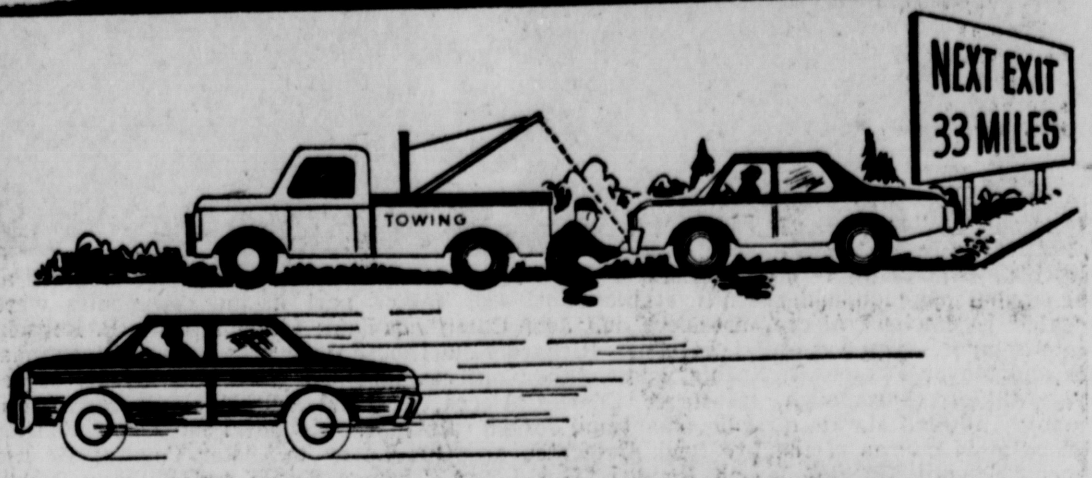

The budget contains no new tax implications for New York taxpayers. Rockefeller and the legislators took care of that aspect in January when they enacted a $407-million package of tax increases to meet what the governor said would be a $1.5-billion deficit over 15 months, beginning in January, without them.

It does contain a possibility of more money for the City University of New York—if the city comes up with more funds—with the same amount promised to the State University.

The Department of Mental Hygiene's budget would rise to $613 million, compared with the $601 million Rockefeller asked. In order to win some support from Democrats, the Republican leadership agreed to cut in half the proposed $965,000 appropriation for the controversial Scott Commission, which is studying the operation of New York City government.

And to keep from losing some Republican votes, the money cut from the Scott Commission budget was moved to State Comptroller Arthur Levitt's Department of Audit and Control for special audits of the city's operations.

It's frustrating, sitting here, knowing we could do more for the people we serve. Senator Rolison and Assemblyman Bell, the men who travel to Albany, know our hands are tied by some outmoded laws that prevent us from making personal loans and offering checking accounts. They're already on our side. Because they know that these are services that people need. And that the only way people can get them now is from commercial banks. But people should have a choice. Like our legislators, we'd like to see the laws changed. To help the people, to help the economy. And we're asking everyone who feels the same as our representatives to back them up. To write and tell them. Together, maybe we can get it done this year.

Firm Guilty of Violating City Zoning Ordinance

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON Special City Court Judge George A. Beck has ruled in favor of the city of Kingston in its zoning violation case against L and M Auto Parts of East Strand. Beck issued his ruling following a three-hour trial in city court on Thursday.

The city had charged L and M, which has offices at 222 East Strand, with violating the zoning ordinance in the operation of what the city alleged was a used car-junk car lot across the street at 213-215 East Strand. Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein represented Kingston.

Thomas J. Plunkett (not to be confused with his brother, James C. Plunkett, also an attorney and chairman of the Kingston Zoning Board of Appeals) represented L&M Auto Parts.

The issue revolved around the so-called "grandfather clause" of the city's zoning law which states that if an area is zoned for a nonconforming use (the area in question is zoned R-2, although that was not an issue) it can remain nonconforming even though a new business comes in as long as that new business is essentially the same as the previous business.

In this case, David Gill Jr., a building and supply firm, stored material at 213-215 East Strand, beginning in 1957, six years before the city's zoning law was passed. Gill was allowed to continue because it had been there before the 1963 zoning law was passed. Gill sold the business in February of 1970 and L&M bought it in March of 1971. L&M contended that since Gill had stored materials there for his business across the street, than L&M could do the same thing. The fact that Gill stored building supplies and L&M stored used cars made no difference, L&M attorney Plunkett argued.

During the period between when the Gill firm sold its property to Charles Gersh, and the time L&M went into business, the property was rented by a man identified as Fred Holmes.

Holmes, appearing as a defense witness, said he had rented it for the storage of junk and abandoned cars and that he did repair of cars on the site. Holmes rented the property from December of 1970 until the end of the following month when L&M took over the property.

He said he worked for the city, picking up abandoned and used cars and taking them to 213-215 East Strand. Holmes said he had the city contract to pick up junk and abandoned cars and did so when ordered by the city. He said the city was aware, through Officer Louis Sapp, in charge of junk and abandoned car removal, that he was taking the cars to 213-215 East Strand. He said he was not aware it was against the law until told by City Building Inspector George E. Radcliffe and after being notified by Radcliffe, he abandoned the operation.

L&M began operation in March of 1971 and on Aug. 20, Radcliffe notified them by registered letter that they were in violation of law with their operation at 213-215 East Strand. Previous to that, Radcliffe had ordered the firm to build a fence around the property and to remove signs advertising for used cars, which the firm did. On Dec. 22, L&M was formally charged by the city with violation of the zoning ordinance.

Klein, in calling witnesses, attempted to prove that L&M was operating a junkyard for cars at 213-215 East Strand. He called, among others, Alderman Clifford G. Sinsabaugh (D-10th Ward) who said he had viewed the premises twice a day every weekday from Aug. 20 to Dec. 22 and said he always saw six or seven cars with no tires, broken windows, missing fenders, etc.

Other witnesses for the city testified to the same thing and also told of traffic tieups due to the operation.

Lawrence Gersh, president of L&M and Marvin Schildhorn, vice president, both refuted that testimony, stating that the few damaged cars in their lot were a result of vandalism and robbery. Gersh and Schildhorn also both testified that the city availed itself of their services, picking up abandoned and junk cars, on numerous occasions.

The L&M officials both testified that they were not selling used cars at 213-215 East Strand but that the cars parked there were only for display and storage purposes. All sales were transacted across the street, at 222 East Strand, they contended.

In the end it came down to the argument on whether L&M's storage of used cars could be treated under the law the same as Gill's storage of building supplies. Judge Beck said no, that the two nonconforming operations were not identical and that there was a difference between building materials and used cars.

Judge Beck set sentencing for April 6 at which time the court will hear such proof as to whether the "offensive use" has been discontinued. Fines of up to $100 and/or 30 days in jail are called for in the zoning law for every day of violation.

Paltz Village, Town Police Hassle Vogt on Eavesdropping... Case Closed

NEW PALTZ police headquarters, with its Ulster County District Attorney Francis J. Vogt said today that his investigation into the eavesdropping hassle between New Paltz Town and Village Police has turned up negative, and that as far as his office is concerned, the "case is closed."

Vogt said the entire incident was "probably a childish prank" and he suggested that both departments "concentrate on... fighting crime."

The eavesdropping incident was first reported Feb. 15, when New Paltz Village Trustee John Logan charged that village police headquarters had been "bugged" by persons in the town police headquarters. Logan said he discovered a microphone secreted in village photographs furnished us by the village police, it is evident that the microphone could not have been placed in the position shown in the photograph from the village police side of the partition.

Vogt said that "All members of the town police department were interviewed, along with several members of the village police force, including the heads of the respective departments. In addition," said Vogt, "other persons, including some public officials, were also interviewed."

According to Vogt, the investigation was essentially negative, and no determination could be made as to who placed the microphone in the partition dividing the two police departments; whether any eavesdropping had ever taken place since no tapes were discovered; or whether the alleged "bug" was in operating condition.

Vogt said he believes the entire incident is "directly related to the controversy" between town and village police. He said no further investigation will be conducted by his office.

DA Raps Court Edict, Favors Legalizing Drug Use If...

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ A blast against search and seizure procedures mandated by U.S. Supreme Court decisions, and a highly qualified endorsement of the move to legalize the use of marijuana highlighted the talk delivered Thursday by Ulster County District Attorney Francis J. Vogt at the New Paltz Drug Awareness Workshop held at the New Paltz Middle School.

Vogt said the 1961 Supreme Court decision on an Ohio case, with its requirement that a search warrant be obtained before a residence was searched, and the placing by Supreme Court decisions of the search of a private automobile under the same requirements gravely hampered the fight against the sale of narcotics.

He said rural counties, such as Ulster County, where drugs have to be transported long distances for distribution, had paid and were paying a "terrible price" because of the decisions.

If a search warrant is not obtained before a search of a car or residence is conducted, all evidence gathered in the search is "suppressed," and not admissible in court.

Obtaining a search warrant, said the district attorney, is "just not all that easy."

"If we could search cars at will," said Vogt, "we could exert some control over hard drugs."

Vogt is in favor of keeping the search warrant requirement for a private residence, but not for automobiles. To help out on the warrants for search of a residence, he has asked all Ulster County town justices not to sign a warrant until a member of the D.A.'s office checks it over. However, not all town justices do it.

Surprisingly, Vogt differed from many law enforcement officers who say the Miranda decision of the Supreme Court, which requires that a person be warned of his Constitutional rights before questioning, has tied the hands of the police.

Vogt said the Miranda decision had given his office "little difficulty."

On the marijuana question, Vogt said he would be in favor of legalizing marijuana if it were proven medically that it was harmless. He said surveys showed that between 20 million and 40 million Americans had used marijuana, and this widespread flaunting of a law was hurting the enforcement of the rest of the nation's laws.

"A law is only a law if it can be enforced," he said.

He emphasized that he considered the legalization of marijuana to be a "medical" question, and that he was only in favor of it if marijuana were proven harmless.

He also said a survey taken by his office of county school systems indicated that while 17 per cent of the students sampled might use marijuana once a week, the percentage of the sample weekly using amphetamines was three per cent, using barbiturates was one per cent, using hallucinogenics was two per cent, and using heroin was only one-half of one per cent.

He said his survey showed the kids knew that the really dangerous drugs were and stayed pretty much away from them.

However, in the past year there have been about a dozen overdose deaths in Ulster County, he said, and all the victims were between the ages of 17 and 19. He termed it "a horrible commentary."

The problem of drug abuse is more of a sociological problem than a law enforcement problem, he said, but there was no reason why the two approaches should be mutually exclusive.

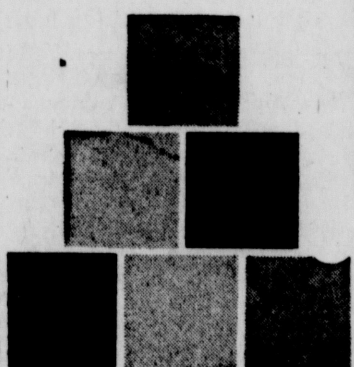

He said the Rockefeller plan of sending addicts to state treatment centers was largely a failure because of the way it had been implemented and because of lack of funds.

Ulster County is now sending addicts to rehabilitation programs such as Renaissance and DayTop, he said, which were generally more successful. He expected to have some concrete results of the program in seven or eight months.

Uptown Parking Rivalry

The amount of cooperation between the uptown businessmen and city officials sometimes borders on the ludicrous. In fact, the situation could contain a touch of high comedy if it wasn't so serious and dangerous to Kingston's economic well-being.

The latest case in point is the respective status of the uptown parking garage, newly opened and operated by the city, and the Senate House Parking Lot, operated by the Uptown Businessmen's Association. Mayor Francis R. Koenig is unhappy with the competition to the uptown municipal facility generated by the Senate Lot, especially since the businessmen's only charge a monthly fee of $6, as opposed to the $10 (sheltered) or $8 (unsheltered) charged by the city.

The mayor feels that the motorist is going to opt for the less expensive parking lot causing a consequent loss of revenue to the city because the Uptown Garage will not be fully utilized.

Now enter Mr. Donald Steward, director of the Palisades Park Commission, in charge of the status of the Senate property under the jurisdiction of the State Historic Trust. Steward said that the businessmen have no right to charge for parking on the site, and that his verbal approval for them to utilize the property was solely for the Christmas season. So, for the nonce, monthly paid parking at the Senate Lot is in abeyance until a firm ruling can be obtained from the Palisades Commission.

Koenig's point in drying up the revenue garnered by the Senate Parking Lot is to make sure the municipal facility, which cost the taxpayers $700,000, gets as much revenue as it can. It must be obvious that a solvent Uptown Parking Garage will benefit the merchants as much as anyone else.

Why Is Vida Blue?

Except that the sun will rise each day in the East, the surest thing on Earth is that Vida Blue will be playing baseball in the big leagues next month. In reading the announcement of his retirement to go to work for a kitchen-cabinet firm, he broke down and giggled. Can't blame him. It was sort of funny.

The case of this overnight star pitcher who wants $90,000-plus to play this year, and his employer, Charles O. Finley, Oakland club owner who says his top offer is $50,000, is no giggling matter. At its heart is the beleaguered reserve clause, under which it is possible that Blue's career is now ended if Finley won't go up and Blue won't come down. The U.S. Supreme Court is due to consider an aspect of the Curt Flood case today—he's the former player who's attacking the reserve clause's legality and the exemption baseball enjoys from anti-trust laws.

For its own selfish reasons, baseball should get its house in order, and settle its problems so court action is precluded.

The players themselves, as a matter of justice, deserve protection from any unreasonable, tight-fisted, cold-hearted owners who are more businessmen than sportsmen. The owners deserve protection from the gabby, greedy, money-mad players who demand outlandish pay increases, maybe because they feel they're worth it, but maybe, too, to strongarm the owner into trading them.

Baseball needs a commission to decide player-owner stalemates. Yes, that means an owner would be delegating to an outsider the authority to decide an internal matter. But sports are a peculiar amalgam, part sports, part business. In the case in point, more than Mr. Finley stands to lose if Vida Blue is finished. Sports teams are both partners and rivals—a packed Yankee Stadium to see Blue pitch helps the Yankee coffers, too.

A panel made up of player and owner representatives, and impartial members—respected, level-headed businessmen and professional people, all with a feeling for baseball and its problems—could attack these cases with reason, perspective and common sense. The end result might not leave everyone happy—but it would come closer than a Supreme Court decision that just could be a death knell for the game.

Vida Blue will be making pitches for the Oakland A's or some other major league team, not for kitchen cabinets. But there'll be other "Blue-Finley" wrangles, and the time is now to set up the machinery to settle them.

WASHINGTON—The Navy's vaunted destroyers are in danger of becoming a ramshackle collection of tin cans with blind radar, broken missile systems, wheezing pumps and rotting hulls.

This is the ominous warning in classified messages from the admirals of the Atlantic and Pacific cruiser-destroyer forces to the Navy Material Command in Washington.

The glaring problems were first outlined 17 months ago in a three-page teletype message stamped "PRIORITY... CONFIDENTIAL." It reads more like the inventory of a junk pile than an analysis of the Navy's sleek terriers of the sea.

"The message is to focus attention on the ten material deficiencies considered most serious (and) to urgently solicit... corrective action," the worried admirals reported.

Most urgent they warned was the condition of the intricate air search radar equipment which is supposed to alert the fleet to any surprise attack. Its "reliability (is) poor, parts support poor, maintenance manhours and cost high," the cable lamented.

The Navy's famous ASROC anti-submarine rocket could not be launched on some ships in case of a sub attack because the "loader cranes are categorically unreliable." The fleet admirals added that

"redesign and/or ship alterations (has) not provided any significant improvement... An immediate 'get well' program is needed if this equip is to be used at all."

The hulls of the handsome warships have also suffered "structural failures" in part because the "aluminum structure deteriorates due to electrolysis." The admirals called for urgent help "to alleviate this serious deficiency."

Black Paint

The seadogs also complained that some dimwit had ordered vital repair parts "dipped in black paint (which) makes spares almost unidentifiable." Other parts are "virtually nonexistent," technical manuals are "inadequate" and parts replacement delays are so rampant that one failing part sometimes masks another.

Poor design and missing parts have also fouled gun mounts, air compressors, transceivers, electronic intelligence monitors, air blowers and even course plotting boards.

On some items, the "situation is beyond the repair technicians' control," the fleet admirals complained. They "recommend complete review" of these items by the Navy Secretary himself.

After this stunning complaint, the Navy began a crash program for repairs. We have studied hundreds of pages of the follow-up documents, many of them classified, on what progress has been made.

Sad to relate, the most recent one, dated February 25, 1972, lists nine of the 10 most critical conditions still in need of drastic corrections.

Footnote: Although the Navy has spent billions on such whacky schemes as a robot helicopter—which was supposed to sniff out subs but only fell into the sea or disappeared into the wild blue yonder—it has failed to put its ingenuity and effort into the needed fleet repairs. The navy's new material chief, Adm. Isaac C. Kidd, has sworn he will reverse this trend.

Dita's Fumble

Wally Hickel, the Interior Secretary fired by President Nixon for his outspoken ways, recalls in his book about Washington misadventures a party thrown by ITT's lobbyist Dita Beard.

Hickel had just learned in 1968 that he was going to be Interior Secretary. When an aide, Carl McMurray, went to a Dita Beard party, he was astonished to find it was a celebration of "the pending nomination of Maryland Congressman Rogers C. B. Morton as Secretary of the Interior."

"Dita and her friends were excited about the prospect of having in this post an Easterner familiar with the corridors of Capitol Hill," recalls Hickel. Dita, of course, had been badly misinformed.

Still, it was she who had the last laugh. Two years later, Hickel was fired and Rogers Morton was installed in his place.

Washington Whirl

White Elephant—Noah Dietrich, long-time aide to billionaire Howard Hughes, claims that Hughes has charged off more than $50 million as business expenses on the huge eight-motored "Spruce Goose" seaplane. The deductions on corporate tax returns can't be justified, says Dietrich, now 83, because the plywood plane which Hughes test flew only once is of no use. Yet Hughes still maintains it and writes off the expense as an annual tax loss.

Better Break?—The Federal Home Loan Bank Board's plan to give minority-owned savings and loan associations a better break threatens to backfire in favor of the big, rich "S&Ls." The board plans to allow savings and loan associations to open up as many as five mini-offices, one for each main or branch office. But the smaller, minority-run associations often have only one main office. Thus the big associations will grow richer at the expense of the one-office minority operations.

Labor's Walkout

WASHINGTON—The fact that three of the five labor representatives on the government's pay board, including AFL-CIO President George Meany, walked off the board and declared that it is unfair in handling wage decisions doesn't mean that President Nixon cannot continue the agency's operations. For the pay board has been authorized under a statute of Congress, and the President may appoint members from any sector he thinks advisable in order to pass judgment on the questions that are laid before the 15-member tribunal for decision.

It is generally assumed, of course, that the walkout was tantamount to a resignation. But it could have been merely a demonstration of protest. What was said afterwards by the labor members, however, indicated that they feel the board is prejudiced against their side and that it would be better for labor not to participate in the board's rulings. They claim they are outvoted by the other members—namely, the five who represent the public and the five designated from the business world—and that the 15-man panel "represents political and business interests."

Judge George H. Boldt, chairman of the pay board, promptly denied that public members have sided with business. He said that the labor representatives did not attend board meetings regularly and that not a single one of them was present when the board considered the West Coast longshoreman's contract. Judge Boldt also declared that labor's viewpoint had been accepted in five of the eight major contracts reviewed by the board and that labor members had voted with the majority 36 times and in the minority only 13 times.

Labor's dissatisfaction with the pay board has been growing, and the action taken by the members who withdrew from it came after a unanimous vote by the AFL-CIO's 35-member executive council.

President Nixon has the authority to name to the board anyone he believes is competent to analyze the effects of wage increases. He does not necessarily have to choose someone who is associated with unions or who handles labor relations for management. The present law gives the President broad powers on the subject.

There is, of course, no reason why any labor leader should serve on the pay board if he doesn't desire to do so. But the decisions of the panel, with or without labor's consent, must be obeyed. The administration could bring the matter before the courts to secure compliance with the board's orders.

The President was very much disturbed by the action of the AFL-CIO members, and the White House declared that they would not be allowed to "sabotage" the fight against inflation or the wage-price stabilization program.

It has been evident ever since the pay board was set up that there might some day be grave disputes over its rulings. The President had hoped that representatives of labor and management would be able to adopt a conciliatory attitude toward one another.

The President, of course, could have selected for his board 15 members who did not occupy a prominent position in either labor or business and who could sit as a judicial-minded group. In that case, there would be no difficult. But the labor unions from the beginning felt that the one-third of the board from industry as well as some of the public members were lined up against them.

While labor unions may be unhappy about decisions reached by the pay board, the fact remains, that, if inflation cannot be curbed, the economic situation of the country will be impaired. The public demand for the last three years has been for some method of holding down prices and wages. But if labor refuses to be a partner in that common effort, the government will find it very difficult to restrain inflation.

The secret of economic recovery lies in a stable wage and price situation. If excessive wage demands are allowed to push up prices, there is no way that price levels can be held down. This, in turn, has an adverse effect on the sales of many products and business expansion is retarded.

President Nixon has been reluctant to use stringent measures to control wages and prices, but it would not be surprising if he feels compelled to do so when a program such as he constructed under a pay board and price commission is cast aside by the labor leaders. He has to find some means to protect the country against runaway wage costs.

Polls --- You Takes Your Cherce

The trouble with polls is that, in many instances, they can be interpreted to the taste of the individual reader. Permit me to state that I am opposed to polls; I concede their popularity with readers, statesmen and editors. I may be alone in not giving them attention.

Carefully, scientifically, they work out a selection of perhaps three to five thousand persons—often less—and ask questions, such as:

A. Do you think Nixon is doing a good job?

B. Do you think Nixon is doing a poor job?

Often the responses read: Yes, 40 per cent; No, 30 per cent; No opinion, 30 per cent. The weakness in the system of gathering an accurate cross-section opinion of the people is that too few persons are polled and, worse, the opinion samplers allow the "No opinion" people to form a percentage. In the case of the President, if he wins half the "No opinion" people, he has 55 per cent approval; 45 per cent disapproval.

In many instances, the "No opinion" group controls the outcome. It is a sad truth that Presidents of the United States have become addicted to polls, and believe the ones which make them look good. I would too.

The last President who paid no attention to polls which, by the way, were almost universally opposed to him, was Franklin D. Roosevelt. He took polls and won and went out and won and won. When the old-time pontifical pollster—"The Literary Digest"—predicted that Alf Landon would beat FDR, and the sweet man from Kansas was swamped by the rich kid from Hyde Park. "The Literary Digest" did the decent thing: It shot itself.

In 1968, many polls had Nixon far ahead of Humphrey, but the final tally was Nixon: 31,785,000 votes (43.4 per cent); Humphrey 31,275,000 (42.7 per cent); George Wallace 9,906,000 (13 per cent). Of a total of 73,210,000 votes cast, Nixon won by 510,000 over Humphrey, less than one per cent.

Wallace's vote of almost 10,000,000 was, in the main, a protest vote by Southern Democrats. Without Wallace, Humphrey would have been elected.

Usually, pollsters allow themselves a two per cent error—this elbow room is also permitted to the television network computers. This spreading in both directions from a correct prognostication, comes to 5 per cent leeway. That's a heck of a lot of room. No student in school is permitted to compute any mathematical problem, no matter how hypothetical, without coming up with the precise solution.

This rule cannot be made to apply to polls because the sands of popularity shift from week to week. However, if they were permitted one per cent error in either direction, this would give them a total of three more worth the space they use. If, in addition, the "No opinions" were removed entirely, polls might become reliable instruments of public opinion.

President Lyndon Johnson had faith in them when the polls favored him. He kept some in his jacket pockets. When the polls went against him, he despaired. He found that he could not kick the poll habit. It is unfortunate that the White House and Capitol Hill read and tremble over these polls every few weeks. America may reach a stage where our statesmen will change their attitudes on public matters because the polls tend in an opposite direction.

Once, believe it or not, a national poll on writers was taken—why, escapes me—and I came up in first place in a dead tie with a Russian novelist as the most popular writer. Now, believe me, modesty is not part of my makeup. But I read it and burst out laughing. There are huge areas of this country where the people never heard of me, much less had a chance to read anything I have written. And yet, there I was on top. So I wrote to the poll company and asked if I could see a cross section of what sort of people in what areas of the country were interrogated. No answer. I wrote again. No response.

A short time later, my enormous popularity was proved when Norman Wolfe, of the "Orlando Sentinel," dropped my column. My wife dropped it too, but that's another story. It betrays no secret to say that I have never read anything that Russian wrote, and I'm sure he would not be allowed to read anything I write.

But me—I wanted to believe the result. Oh Lord, how I wanted to think the poll was gospel. I had the clipping put in plastic, squirted with a nickel's worth of Sen-Sen, and put it under my pillow. I didn't do a thing. Just lay there, smelly.

And yet, now that we are in an election year, I am sure that scores of millions of people will scan the opinion samples, believing the results when they are agreeable, and calling them phony when they lean in the opposite direction.

Antipollution Reward Turned In for Ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — proposed $25,000 compromise settlement, to be paid by the federal government to the Hudson River Fishermen's Association as an antipollution reward, was turned over to a federal judge for a ruling.

Ohe Anaconda Wire & Cable Co. pleaded guilty to 100 counts of polluting the Hudson River from a plant at Hastings-on-Hudson last Dec. 10 and paid $200,000 in fines.

The association which sued the firm, claimed it was entitled to half the fine money, under the Refuse Act of 1899, and went to court with lawyers for the U.S. Government to discuss negotiations over the claim.

U.S. Dist. Judge Thomas F. Croke heard the case after the government asked him to answer the question of "what, if any, award" the association would get.

Another workshop of Tivoli Centennial committees is scheduled for Monday evening, March 27, at the village fire house with progress reports in several areas to be stated.

Among new developments are raffle tickets, received from the printers, with prizes listed as including a color television and camping kit.

More than 200 letters have been sent to area businesses soliciting advertising for the Centennial brochure, with some responses received.

A history of the village, being compiled by historian Joan Navins, is reportedly well past the halfway mark in preparation for the brochure.

Applications for the Miss Tivoli contest, open to girls of high school age, are available at Stan's Confectionary and Vic's Village Variety.

Professor Matt Phillips, head of the Bard College Art Department, has agreed to judge the entries for the young peoples' art show. Margaret Teiger, in charge of this show, has noted that all Tivoli young people are urged to submit work for the show in any medium.

NEW YORK (AP) — After sprinting ahead Thursday, the stock market opened higher on a broad front today.

Advances led declines on the New York Stock Exchange by more than 2 to 1 and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up nearly a point.

Analysts said the Dow might be in the process of making another assault on the 23-month closing high of 950.82 reached last April 28.

Prices on the Big Board's most-active list included Texas Instrument, up 1 1/4 at 131 3/4; Natam, up 1 1/4 at 73 3/4; Ethyl Corp., up 1/4 at 26 1/4; and First Charter Financial, up 1/4 at 25.

The market Thursday surged upward despite an absence of encouraging news. The Dow industrial average climbed 10.76 to finish at 944.69, its biggest advance since last Feb. 9, when it rose 11.59. Advances on the Big Board led declines by better than 2 to 1.

Big Board volume increased to 18.38 million shares from 15.4 million shares Wednesday.

Jackie, Galella Lawsuits, Judge Reserves Decision

NEW YORK (AP) — A storied 23-day trial of lawsuits by Jacqueline Onassis and freelance photographer Ronald E. Galella ended in U.S. District Court on Thursday with Judge Irving B. Cooper reserving decision, possibly until next month.

In a surprise finish, Cooper directed Galella to show cause April 3 why he should not be held in civil contempt for allegedly violating an earlier court order instructing him to keep his distance from Mrs. Onassis. The judge, noting that those allegations were part of the trial record, said, "I may hold up the decision until the entire matter is resolved." The show-cause order was requested by Mrs. Onassis's attorneys.

Galella has sued Mrs. Onassis for $1.3 million, claiming she and the Secret Service had interfered with his livelihood by resisting his attempts to photograph her and her children.

The widow of President John F. Kennedy, in a countersuit, asked the court to order Galella to stay at least 100 yards away from her at all times.

Cooper, who is hearing the case without a jury, said the issues at stake were Galella's assertion of "his right to make a living" and Mrs. Onassis' "right to make a life for herself and the children."

"These are of equal weight in their gravity," he said after both sides rested.

Martin London, lawyer for Mrs. Onassis who requested the show-cause order against Galella, claimed that trial testimony proved that Galella had violated restrictions placed on him in a court order signed last Dec. 2.

The order had directed Galella to stay at least 100 yards from the Onassis apartment in Manhattan, and 50 yards from Mrs. Onassis and her children. It also forbade attempts by Galella to communicate with them "in any fashion," London said.

The attorney specifically cited testimony by Galella which, London said, proved that "he or his agent" approached within 8 to 10 feet of Mrs. Onassis last Jan. 9 while she was at a New York nightclub.

London also argued that Galella should be held in contempt "for failing to produce various documents, including a number of photographs that had been subpoenaed for the trial. Alfred S. Julien, Galella's lawyer, protested the contempt order saying, "This entire procedure is improper."

Two Men Sought After Alleged Cabbie Holdup

KINGSTON

Two men were sought today by the sheriff's department in connection with the alleged robbery of a taxicab operator, who told authorities he was assaulted and his hands were bound with wire by his assailants Thursday night.

First Sergeant Donald Policastro said Simon Barrelos, 20, a driver for Fatum's Taxi Service, complained that he was dispatched to Bud's Submarine Shop on Broadway at 11:50 p. m. yesterday to pick up a fare. He said he drove two black men across the Rondout Bridge and on the other side claimed the men told him to turn right on Connelly Road and stop.

Barrelos, Policastro reported, told Deputy Sheriffs Arthur Nersesian and Richard Bockelman later that the men put a wire around his neck and one of the pair drove the taxi back to Kingston and stopped under the Rondout Creek bridge on Dock Street. The victim said the men tied wire around his hands and pushed him from the Kelly home on Spillway Road, vehicle into a ditch. Then they made off in an unidentified car through a side door leading into a garage attached to the residence. Missing were several household articles valued at $500. The same house was investigated a burglary burglarized last Dec. 9, police reported at the John and Ann said.

Upcoming Pageant Will Have Showboat Theme

Showboat is the theme of this year's Miss Ulster County Scholarship Pageant to be held Saturday April 22 at 8 p.m. in Saugerties High School auditorium.

According to George Leombruno, recently named producer of the show, the theme lends itself to a lavish Creole setting in the deep south with blooming magnolias, period costumes and a replica of the Showboat itself.

Music will be offered by Dave Keehn and his Pageant Orchestra presenting various arrangements of Showboat melodies. Joseph Bosco Jr. will again serve as master of ceremonies in his Mississippi gambler's ensemble and Harriet Hansen, the Hudson Valley's Wendy Ward will serve as commentator dressed in the finery of a Southern belle.

The production will also include the popular Pete Mathews of Kingston and his banjo. Kingston's Coach House Players will present a production number and Sam Tesoriero, a former Pageant emcee will direct the choreography for an opening production number.

To date, two orientations have resulted in firm commitments from seven prospective contestants.

Other committee members in addition to Leombruno are William Warner, finance chairman; Lois Buchan, ticket chairman; Dorothy Core, Pageant secretary, Jaycees coordinator and entries chairman; Al Cawein, business manager and publicity chairman; Laura Buono, chaperone; Wilson Emunds, judges chairman; Joseph Bosco Jr., general adviser; Herbert Lachmann, Pageant adviser; Robert E. Ricketson Jr., photography; Robert Brandt, Jaycee external vice president and Walter Gustafson, Jaycee director.

Hints From Heloise

DO YOUR LAUNDRY BY THE BUCKET

DEAR HELOISE:

I am a young mother with two babies under two years of age so I am always eager to find time-saving techniques.

With two children, laundry builds up fast and the worst part of this task was sorting it and transporting it to the laundromat.

Well, I found that my diaper pail (which is twice the size of a standard bucket) held about the right amount of clothes for machine load.

So I bought three more of these diaper pails and I put one in the bottom of my closet, one in my husband's closet and one in the children's closet.

The diaper pail in my closet is for underthings, the one in my husband's closet is for dark-colored clothes and the children's pail is for their clothes.

Not only does this help to keep up with my laundry, but it is an easy way to transport the clothes to the laundromat since these pails have handles.

Finally, plastic diaper pails are cheap at the discount stores and they come in white, pink and blue so it makes it easy to remember which clothes are in these pails.

Anyway, this idea has helped me, and the regular laundry hamper only holds the sheets, towels, and pillow cases.

MRS. R. E. BUCK

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

If you talk to yourself — there is nothing to worry about!

If you talk to yourself — then answer yourself — there still isn't a thing to worry about!

But if you talk to yourself, answer yourself, and then say, "What did you say?" — It's time to start worrying!

MRS. M. GREEN

Whew! That's a load off my mind — so far, so good!

HELOISE

DEAR HELOISE:

A friend of mine just refinished an old parchment lamp shade that I had discarded and now I wish I had it back . . .

Just kidding, but it does look lovely. She put a thin coat of shellac on the shade, and, while it was still wet, sprinkled it with sand. (She used an old salt shaker.)

After this dried for a day or so, she brushed it well and covered it with several more coats of shellac.

charge and the public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served after the performance on Palm Sunday.

Anything Goes

The "little old lady in tennis shoes" is right in style this year—and so is practically anybody else, no matter what their choice of footwear. The American Footwear Institute says anything goes, from campy put-ons to conservative slip-ins. Match your shoes to your mood and to your costume and don't worry.

Hemlines Drop

Daytimes the fashionable women is keeping her hemlines moderate, but after five the hemline drops at least to the ankle and perhaps all the way to the floor. It isn't necessarily a dress-up, gown-type look. The casual air is elegant these days in separates — long skirts, perhaps, in fabrics such as black jersey, combined with bright, patterned shirts. Long strings of tinkling chains can add a further bright touch.

Dear Abby

Grandma Turned Off By X-Rated Films

By ARIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me, am I an old fashioned, prissy, 52-year-old wife, mother and grandmother because I don't enjoy going to X-rated movies? My husband thinks I am.

He asked me to go to one of those movies with him and I did, and I didn't care for it at all. To me sex is something beautiful between a husband and wife, and I don't like to see it exploited before my eyes on a movie screen.

My husband says it turns him on. Well, it turns me OFF! Do you think I should go to sexy movies with him just to keep him company? I find them humiliating.

OLD FASHIONED DEAR OLD: If your husband needs an X-rated film to turn him on, let him go alone. And tell him to hurry straight home before you turn IN, or he's turned OFF!

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the propriety of asking a hostess, when she invites you to dinner, "Who else is coming?" I don't think it's impolite to ask. I always do. And it's not because I may want to decline or accept, depending on who else will be there.

We live in the suburbs, and if friends who live nearby are going to the same party in the city, it's convenient and fun to ride together. If I invited someone to a party, and she asked who else was coming because if she didn't care for some of my other guests she might decline, I would rather she did.

ALWAYS ASKS DEAR ALWAYS: Your reason for asking is a valid one, which changes the complexion of the situation. So, don't guess who's coming to dinner. Ask!

DEAR ABBY: In reference to "Disgusted" who had so many bad experiences with service and repairmen who didn't show up: She should call the Better Business Bureau when shopping for a repairman. And even more important, if one doesn't show up, she should let the B.B.B. know about it. Businessmen with a reputation for "standing up" their customers don't stay in business long, and your complaints to the B.B.B. are kept strictly confidential.

ALL FOR THE B.B.B. DEAR ALL: Thanks for the reminder. Now hear it from the repairman:

DEAR ABBY: Since others use your column to air their pet gripes, may I?

It's customers who, when they arrange for an appointment to repair their television, fail to be there, or even leave a door unlocked. They don't call, they just aren't there. (Always an excuse, "I went to the store for a few minutes," car trouble, etc.) Abby, time is money, and these inconsiderate people cost us both.

My other repairman friends tell me they've had the same lousy experience with some customers. What's the matter with people nowadays? Their word isn't worth a thing.

DISGUSTED REPAIRMAN IN TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: You wrote, "I think there should be a special place in heaven for the woman who marries a divorced man with a first family, because as far as the man is concerned (whether from guilt or whatever) his 'first' family usually comes first. And the same holds true for a divorced woman with a first family."

Abby, I don't want to get personal, but such insight and compassion could have come from a woman who has had that experience. Did you perchance marry a divorced man with a "first" family?

NOSY DEAR NOSY: No. But some of my best friends did.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. (Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 10:25 a.m. WKNY-1490)

Glazed Cornish Hens Add Elegance to Seder Table

The Seder Service recalls the ancient story of Israel's redemption from the bondage in Egypt. The purpose of the Seder is to give families the opportunity to ponder the dramatic and miraculous events which led to the exodus from an ancient land of slavery. Centuries ago the Bible instructed Jews to meet on the eve of Passover . . . "And thou shalt tell them on that day, saying: It is because of that which the Lord did for me when I came forth out of Egypt." Simplified, these words of the Bible mean that young and old should gather on the eve of Passover, so that the elders can relate to the children, and to all, this thrilling chapter in the history of the Hebrew people.

Passover is a time of happiness, reunion, ritual and tradition. As each Jewish family gathers at the symbolic Seder table, the freedom gained so long ago is celebrated once again, and age-old joys gladden every heart.

This Passover season add a touch of elegance to your Seder meal with Glazed Cornish Hens. These succulent hens are brushed with Planters Peanut Oil and basted with a mixture of white wine and chicken broth. Planters Peanut Oil is an important ingredient in Jewish-style cookery. As the most subtle of the polyunsaturated cooking oils, it wakes up the flavor of other ingredients. Planters Peanut Oil is kosher and pareve for Passover.

Wine-Glazed Cornish Hens

Four (One to one and one-quarter pounds each) Rock Cornish game hens, thawed and rinsed

Coarse Salt
One-quarter cup Planters Peanut Oil

One cup dry white wine
One cup chicken broth

Parsley
Lime slices

Sprinkle and rub inside and outside of hens with salt. Truss birds. Place in a shallow roasting pan. Brush each hen with 1 tablespoon Planters Peanut Oil. Mix together wine and chicken broth; pour mixture over hens. Roast at 350 degrees F., basting occasionally, about 1 hour. Increase temperature to 400 degrees F. and roast until hens are tender. Arrange hens on serving platter and garnish with parsley and lime slices. Makes 4 servings.

Doing the Right Thing

Dear Mrs. Post:

My daughter is being married the morning of July 4th, by a Justice of the Peace. That evening we are having a "wedding" dinner for about eighty people at a restaurant or hotel.

I would greatly appreciate any information you can give me as to dress for the immediate family.

MRS. AMES

Dear Mrs. Ames:

At the civil ceremony in the morning, the correct dress would be lightweight suits for the men, and short, pretty summer dresses for the women, in whatever style and color is becoming.

For the evening reception summer tuxedos (white jackets) and the women, long skirts, or simple dinner dresses. If you do not wish to be that formal, cocktail dresses for the women and blazers for the men would be fine.

Town of Ulster Improvement Area...Future on the Line

By JON POWERS

LAKE KATRINE

The future of the Town of Ulster Sewer Improvement Area will be decided Saturday as voters go to the polls in a mandatory referendum to either approve or reject the expenditure of an additional $1.9 million.

Two voting machines will be set up at the Chambers Elementary School from 12 noon to 8 p. m. on Saturday. Residents living in the Ulster Sewer Improvement Area and those who own property in the Sewer Improvement Area, including corporate owners, are eligible to vote.

The additional money is needed to complete the project, since sufficient funds are not available under the original bond authorization, to award contract "3-C."

If voters defeat the bond issue Saturday, all contracts but "3-C" will be completed, but the sewer contract will not be put into operation. Town of Ulster officials indicated they would hold further public hearings and referendums until the necessary money is raised.

Contract "3-C" covers collecting sewers and totals $1,144,440.

If voters approve the bond issue Saturday, contract "3-C" will be awarded (it is now being held in abeyance) and construction will begin immediately.

To date, contract "2" (interceptor sewers) has been fully completed; contract "1" (sewage treatment plant) has been under construction for six months and is expected to be completed by March, 1973; contracts "3-A" and "3-B" have been awarded with construction scheduled for completion in May, 1973.

The Ulster Sewer Improvement Area was established by resolution on Oct. 30, 1968. On Nov. 23, 1968, voters approved a $4,528,000 bond issue. Construction began in May, 1971.

An unanticipated sharp increase in construction costs and interest rates, however, made it impossible to complete the project with the originally approved funds. The cost of the project is now set at $6,428,000.

Of that amount, state and federal aid will total $1.3 million, with residents of the Sewer Improvement Area to be charged for the remaining $5 million.

Residents of the Sewer Improvement Area will begin paying for the new project (if it is approved) in 1974, at a rate of $.99 per $1,000 as assessed valuation. The cost of the sewer plan will be highest in 1976, when property owners will pay an estimated $48.34 per $1,000 of assessed valuation for the sewer plan alone. The amount will decrease each year after that until the debt service is paid off.

On Wednesday, the Ulster Town Board sold $1 million in municipal bonds to help finance construction of the sewer district. Bankers Trust was awarded the low bid of 5.75 per cent with a premium of $5,210. Other bidders were Marine Midland Bank (5.8 per cent) and Kingston Trust (5.75 per cent with a $70 premium). The net interest for the second series of bonds is 5.71 per cent. The interest rate is considered low by Town of Ulster officials.

Several organizations have come out in favor of the town's request for an additional $1.9 million, including the Town of Ulster Businessmen's Association and the Town of Ulster Lions Club. On the other hand, the Town of Ulster Democratic Committee has urged voters to reject the plan. Recording secretary Edward Frawley said, "The town administration's fiscal irresponsibility cannot be ignored by the taxpayers." There are an estimate 1,500 families residing within the boundaries of the Sewer Improvement Area.

Faculty Must Refile Grievance

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

The Faculty Association of Ulster County Community College must refile its grievance with the Ulster County Legislature over the third sabbatical leave that was denied this year by the college's Board of Trustees.

According to Assistant Ulster County Attorney John J. Lynch, the Faculty Association first filed its grievance with UCCC President George B. Erbstein in mid-February, although the law requires that "the employee must present his grievance to his immediate supervisor which, in this case, would be the Dean of the Faculty (Robert J. Markes)."

Lynch added that if the grievance then remains unresolved, it should be passed on to the president of the college.

Lynch wrote a letter to the Faculty Association dated March 16, in which he outlined the correct filing procedures. Faculty Association president Theodore Dietz told The Freeman on Thursday that he has received the letter and has already taken the necessary steps to re-file the grievance. He said he has met informally with Markes, who indicated that he does not have the authority to take action, and will pass it on to Erbstein.

"We will take their suggestions," said Dietz. "It will only mean another week's delay. They are apparently concerned that if the grievance procedure is not followed to the letter of the law, it cannot be acted upon."

Dietz added that the Faculty Association, originally, did not think the grievance "was of concern to the Dean of the Faculty" and so, instead, "started right with the president."

The grievance is expected to be passed on to Erbstein on Tuesday, when he returns from a trip to the Soviet Union.

Dietz said he expects the grievance to be back in the hands of Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago next week.

The grievance stems from a Jan. 6 decision of the Board of Trustees to turn down a request by UCCC professor Harry Matzen to spend part of this semester on a sabbatical leave at the Sorbonne in Paris.

The Board of Trustees said Matzen's request was filed after the established deadline.

The Faculty Association maintains that its contract has been violated because three sabbaticals were guaranteed for this year, but only two were awarded. They are requesting that the third sabbatical be carried over to next year.

The Faculty Association warned that impending contract negotiations might be affected because of the sabbatical controversy.

Those negotiations have already started, with the third meeting held Wednesday night. It was reported that negotiations have been "amicable" and that both sides are attempting to "resolve differences."

Both parties (the Faculty Association and the County Legislature's Community College Committee) have agreed not to disclose the contents of their talks until concrete agreements have been reached. It has not been reported if sabbaticals are among the matters discussed to date.

The next negotiating session will be held Wednesday.

The current teachers' contract expires at the end of this year.

Police Argue. One Now Dead

FREEMONT, N.Y. (AP) — New York City detective Ronald Chocko and patrolman William McQuillan came here with the same melancholy purpose—to take their place amid the throng of mourners for fellow slain officer Elijah Stroud.

On their way from the funeral Thursday, the policemen stopped off at the Spouter Inn here, where something touched off an argument between them. Nassau County police said the two carried the altercation outside to a parking lot where Chocko was shot fatally in the head. Several hours later, McQuillan was charged with the murder of a police officer.

Chocko, 34, had been with the New York City police department since 1962 and was currently assigned to the fifth division burglary and larceny squad, headquartered in Harlem.

He lived with his wife and four daughters in Babylon.

McQuillan, 29, attached to a police motorcycle unit in the Bronx, lives with his family in Freeport. He was held in custody overnight for arraignment today.

About 2,500 policemen from New York City and 32 other departments in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut had attended the funeral of Stroud, 48, cut down Saturday night when he stopped two youths from holding up a Brooklyn meat market.

Surprise! Florida State Will Face UCLA

FANCY DRIBBLING — UCLA's Henry Bibby (45-L) falls and Louisville's Jim Price (15-R) trips over him but manages to keep dribbling the ball during the first half of Thursday's NCAA semi-final game in Los Angeles. The Bruins won, 96-77, to advance to Saturday's final against Florida State. (UPI)

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Bill Walton, UCLA's jolly red giant, and his young teammates will play for the Bruins' sixth straight NCAA basketball title, as expected, Saturday.

But the opponent will be Florida State and not North Carolina.

The eight-point underdog Seminoles provided the only surprise of the NCAA semifinals Friday night, knocking off No. 2-ranked North Carolina, 79-75, before Walton devastated Louisville, 96-77.

So it will be UCLA—the No. 1-rated team in the country and undefeated in 29 games—against No. 10 Florida State for the championship Saturday at 2 p.m. PST on national television.

"I think this is the best UCLA team ever," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum, a man who should know. Crum helped recruit the ingredients for the Walton Gang, including the red-haired sophomore himself, as UCLA Coach John Wooden's chief assistant for three years before taking the Kentucky post this season.

The 6-foot-11 Walton, winner of the Naismith Award as college basketball's Player of the Year, scored 33 points and collected 21 rebounds. He had 24 of his points and 16 of his rebounds in the opening half as UCLA built up an eight-point lead.

Florida State, which came into the final round of four with five losses against 26 wins, had to hold off a furious second-half North Carolina rally, though. The Seminoles padded a 13-point halftime lead to 23-59, 36-56 with six minutes gone in the second half.

Although Robert McAdoo fouled out with 9:48 left, the Tar Heels managed to get to within five points with 6 1/2 minutes left. They were within three with five seconds left.

McAdoo had 24 points and Dennis Wuyck added 20, 15 of them in the second half, for North Carolina.

The Tar Heels and Cardinals tangled for third place Saturday at 12:10 p.m.

Referee Had the Last Word

NEW YORK (AP) — Center Greg Cluess said he didn't, but referee Joe DeBonis said he did.

The referee had the last word, as usual, and called a foul on the St. John's, N.Y. big man.

Al Williams then made the last free throw, giving Niagara a thrilling 69-67 basketball victory over the Redmen Thursday night in the semifinals of the 31st National Invitation Tournament.

"I didn't touch him. I didn't even come close," said Cluess after Niagara pulled out the thriller on Williams' foul shots with five seconds left and joined Maryland in the finals Saturday.

The Terrapins earlier advanced to the payoff game by running Jacksonville out of Madison Square Garden with a 91-77 victory.

Before Williams made the pressure-packed shots, the Redmen called time out in an attempt to make the little guard nervous.

"I had confidence, though," said Williams. "I practice my foul shooting as much as I do my jump shots."

Despite denials, the 5-foot-9 Williams thought he was hampered by the 6-9 Cluess when he went up for a shot.

"He grabbed me and hit me on the arm," said Williams.

Williams wound up with 15 points. Marshall Wingate was Niagara's leading scorer, hitting for 23, including three key field goals in the last six minutes.

Tom McMillen scored 25 points, including six crucial points in less than a minute of the second half, to hold Maryland to a surprisingly easy victory over Jacksonville in the opener.

The Dolphins had trimmed the Terps' lead from 38-31 at the half to 52-49 with 11:30 left in the game. Then Len Elmore fired in a turn-around jumper and McMillen delivered two field goals and two foul shots to make it 60-49.

"It was a wild game and that's just the way we like to play them," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell. "We had a chance to really open it up tonight."

Maryland not only kept up with the usually swift Dolphins, but actually beat them at their own game—the fast break.

"Maryland outplayed us," said Jacksonville Coach Tom Wasdin. "They outrebounded us, outdefended us—they were just the better club tonight. It was that simple."

"We're still capable of a better game," said Elmore, who scored 23 points and grabbed 14 rebounds.

McMillen wound up with 25 points, many of them smooth, outside shots, and 12 rebounds.

Before it was over, the two big men had powered Maryland to a lopsided, 89-71 advantage.

Rule Changes Aid NFL Offenses

HONOLULU (UPI) — Offensive specialists were smiling today as the National Football League moved into its final day of its annual meeting, having passed several rule changes which will burden the defense.

The big change came after Thursday morning's session when the owners, by a 25-1 vote, decide to move the hash marks closer to the center of the playing field, cutting off the use of the sideline as an extra defensive "player."

Two other changes to help the offensive team came during the afternoon session—calling a pass incomplete if the receiver has stepped out of bounds before catching a pass and allowing a punt to be run out of the end zone.

Another rule change, the result of the feeling that much of this infraction was unintentional, reduced tackling by the face mask from a 15-yard penalty and automatic first down to a five-yard penalty and an automatic first down. But the owners decided to have the officials make the judgment that if the infraction was flagrant, to penalize the violating team 15 yards and award an automatic first down to the other club.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said there was "strong support" for a sudden death period for all tie games and the two-point conversion, both of which fell short of the 20 votes needed for passage. However, Rozelle said more than 20 of the clubs were in favor of a change, but couldn't muster enough votes for either change.

Along with the hash marks being moved in, the league decided to standardize the yard markers in all stadiums.

The yard markers will now all be six feet long, the top of which will be one yard outside of the hash marks.

Today's session was expected to cover amendments to the constitution, including waiver and player limits and extending or shortening the inter-conference trading period. Discussion would also center on the Chicago All-Star Game, the contract for which expires after the 20th meeting between the Dallas Cowboys and the College All Stars July 28.

NBA Will Bar Further Jumping

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Basketball Association has moved to discourage "jumping" by players of the rival American Basketball Association.

NBA Commissioner J. Walter Kennedy announced Thursday that the league will no longer approve contracts signed by players who jump from the ABA.

"We will not approve the contract of a player already under contract until a final court determination is made," said Kennedy. "That could take a long time because it could go clear up to the Supreme Court." The commissioner said, however, that the new ruling will not apply to Jim McDaniels and Charlie Scott, who jumped ABA clubs in recent months and signed with NBA teams.

Can Pipers Play Victory Tune in KBT?

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

KINGSTON
Can Felicello Pipers of Marlboro, the most tournament-tested team in the Mid-Hudson area, successfully defend their Kingston Basketball Tournament title in the 20th annual renewal winding up Saturday and Sunday at the municipal auditorium?

The odds are heavily against it. And Coach John Felicello, a pure realist, can easily appreciate the magnitude of the task confronting his aging Pipers.

"It's going to take a perfect performance to take a perfect performance to beat DeMico Motors," explained Felicello, now the dean of Hudson Valley amateur basketball figures since the passing of George Stutzle and his Pine Plains Bombarriers.

Felicello expects the Pipers to defeat Carp's Raiders, a Kingston-Saugerties combine in Saturday's 7:15 semi-final. DeMico's play Newburgh CWA in the game most likely to determine the ultimate champion at 8:15 Saturday night. The championship final is scheduled Sunday at 8:30 p. m.

"DeMico's have a solid, all-around team," Felicello observed. "George Dalzell is one of the best players around and they have other great talent in Junior Foy, Mel Knight and others. CWA, of course, can be rough if Wade Pittman, Larry Frazier, Jimmy Rogers and the Powell brothers are hot. But I think DeMico's have just too much balance."

"But in a given game," Felicello continued wistfully, "we could take them." John Felicello's teams have been doing a lot of taking since they were organized seven years ago. George Stutzle was a glamorous figure in area basketball simply because he surrounded himself with big name college talent. But it was strictly a once-a-year proposition.

On the other hand, Felicello and the Pipers have been involved in basketball on a seasonal basis for the past seven years. "We're probably the purest amateur team in the valley," said Felicello proudly. "Nobody gets paid on this team and we play strictly for the glory. Our personnel has changed very little in the past five years."

The Pipers are competing in four tournaments this season—Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Wappingers Falls and the St. Agnes Classic at Orangeburgh. In 1971, they won the KBT and placed second in the Clarks-town tournament. Add four Newburgh City titles, three city crowns in Poughkeepsie and the 1968 Marlboro tournament and you have a pretty impressive array of conquests.

Coach Felicello keeps his players busy. They play in two leagues, four tournaments and get independent action. They compiled a 55-7 record in the 1970-71 season and came into this year's KBT with a 35-6 rating.

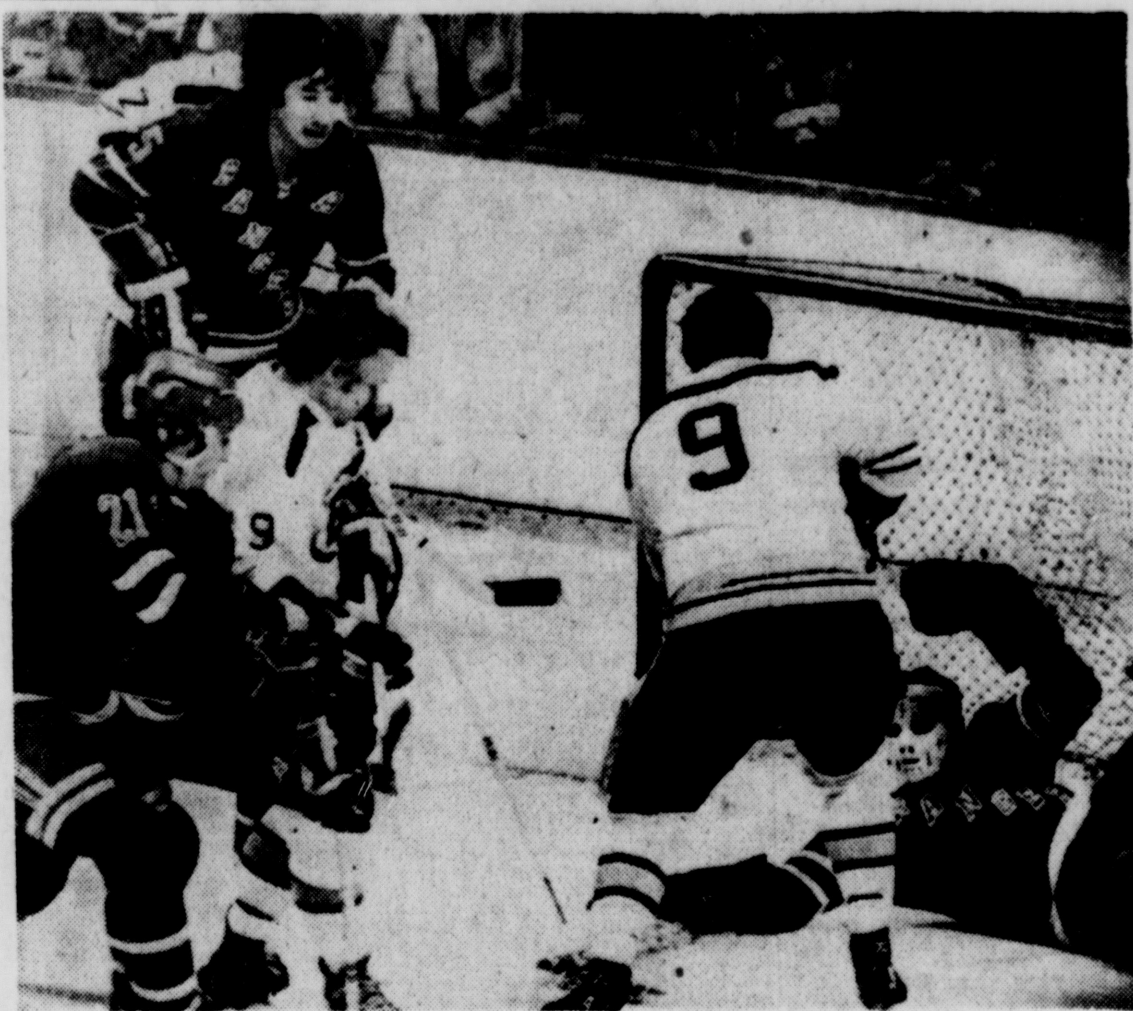

A heating and plumbing contractor, Felicello hasn't lost the amateur touch since he graduated from Marlboro High in 1954 and continued playing in the Poughkeepsie City League and YMCA Tournament until 1968.

The Pipers' newest talent is Dick O'Neil, a Chester High and Kentucky Wesleyan graduate. Steve Aurigemma, former Manhattan ace, heads the oldies on the team. He was the MVP in the 1971 KBT Tournament.

Other players on the roster include Jim Mooney, John Sileno, Tom O'Dea, Tony Misseri and Charlie Delmonico, who rimmed 27 points in the Pipers' 91-74 first round win over the Nite Caps of Poughkeepsie.

"They're a great bunch of players," Felicello concluded. "They can rise to the occasion. And Sunday night will most certainly be another occasion."

In Rangers-Bruins Battle

A Bit of Everything

BOSTON (AP) — When the Boston Bruins and the New York Rangers meet, their games are usually marked by playoff caliber hockey, Bobby Orr, spectacular new records and hot tamperers.

Thursday night's National Hockey League duel between the East Division leading Bruins and the second place New Yorkers had all of that and more.

The Bruins burst out of a two-period 1-1 deadlock with three goals in the last session to claim a 4-1 victory and fatten their lead to seven points.

Bobby Orr, straddling his own goal line, fired a length-of-the-rink shot that passed by three Ranger attackers and rained into an open net for Boston's first goal.

Johnny Bucyk, a 36-year-old left winger, scored two goals, including the game winner, to push past legendary Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of the Montreal Canadiens into eighth place in the league's all-time scoring list. Bucyk has 394 career goals.

League scoring leader Phil Esposito was ejected from the contest with a game misconduct after he charged into a fight.

Chicago beat Philadelphia 4-2 while Minnesota and Buffalo fought to a 4-4 tie in the other NHL games Thursday.

Bobby Hull rapped home his 45th goal of the season—and 599th of his career—helping Chicago to a 3-0 lead over Philadelphia. The Flyers, rallied within 3-2 on goals by Bill Flett and Rick Foley in the second period.

The Hawks wrapped it up on Jim Pappin's goal at 19:19 of the middle period on a 35-footer that whizzed by Philadelphia goalie Don McLeod.

Minnesota couldn't hold a 3-0 lead against Buffalo. The Sabres rallied to tie in the second period on goals by Steve Atkinson, Danny Lawson and Rene Robert.

Ted Harris put Minnesota ahead again in the last period before Lawson's second goal, with less than three minutes to play, again pulled the Sabres even.

Grich Set As Fifth 'Regular'

By United Press International
The three-time American League champion Baltimore Orioles have come up with the only possible thing that could improve their infield: A fifth regular.

He's Bob Grich, the minor leagues' player of the year in 1971 and no doubt the most frustrated rookie of the spring. Grich, who hit .336 with 32 homers for Rochester of the International League last season, had five straight hits Thursday in an 11-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dave McNally, who has won 20 games in each of the last four seasons and is the Orioles' likely opening-day pitcher, worked an easy seven innings during which he allowed seven hits and walked one batter.

In other camps: Larry Dierker, out of action during the second half of the 1971 season with an inflamed elbow, allowed one run and four hits in six innings as the Houston Astros downed the Montreal Expos, 7-1. Roberto Clemente had three singles and Willie Stargell hit his second homer in as many games to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to an 11-6 romp over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Steve Garvey had four hits for the Dodgers.

Harmon Killebrew and Steve Brye homered in the Minnesota Twins' 10-8 victory over the Detroit Tigers. John Milner's two-run double and Mike Jorgensen's two-run homer were the big blows of a six-run third-inning outburst which led the New York Mets to an 8-3 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Tom Grieve hit a two-run homer and Dave Nelson knocked in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a single as the Texas Rangers downed the Atlanta Braves, 7-3. Ron Blomberg, Bobby Murcer and Rusty Torres homered in the New York Yankees' 13-7 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Tommy Reynolds' triple and a single by Rick Auerbach in the 12th inning gave the Milwaukee Brewers an 8-7 decision over the California Angels.

when they meet here with the executive director of the Players Association on the issue of additional benefits to the players' pension fund.

The result could be a strike by the players when their current contract with the owners runs out on March 31. The players have voted overwhelmingly for the strike if their demands are not granted while the owners have voted unanimously not to increase the money put into the pension requested by the players.

John Gaherin, the counsel for the owners, National League President Charles Feeney and American League President Joe Cronin will meet with Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association.

Both sides are presumed to be eager to find a face-saving compromise that would head off the strike but none is readily evident.

August Busch, president of the St. Louis Cardinals and board chairman of Anheuser-Busch, appeared to be speaking for the owners Thursday when he said, "We're not going to give them another damn cent... and if they want to strike, let 'em strike."

Gaherin indicated that he will put the same offer on the table that the players already have rejected but stressed that this action did not rule out the possibility of a higher offer being made at some later time.

Busch's position, which apparently reflects the feelings of his fellow owners, is that the players now have fine pension program and that "we have to stop somewhere."

The strike, if it comes, would not necessarily "shut down" baseball completely. The players have been talking about various types of a strike, including refusing to play on Saturdays and Monday nights when the clubs have extensive TV commitments.

City Council Okays Yankee Stadium Lease

NEW YORK (UPI)—With Mayor John V. Lindsay's four votes cast by his executive assistant, New York's Board of Estimate and City Council approved a lease of Yankee Stadium to the New York Yankees Thursday.

Lindsay was campaigning in Wisconsin.

Council President Sanford Garelik and Staten Island president Robert O'Connor opposed the measure. Controller Abe Beame abstained in the voting, explaining that a $225,000 feasibility study commissioned by the city had not been completed.

The city intends to purchase and refurbish Yankee Stadium, which was opened in 1923, and serves as the playing site for the Yankees and the National Football League Giants. The Giants have said they will move to New Jersey in 1975.

ERNESTLY SPEAKING

BURIED TREASURE

Early in February I lamented the disappearance of some reports our diners filled out, about special occasions at Roberto's. A few of them turned up later; now I've just found a few more. (I moved a pile of paper on my desk, and there they were. So I'm not neat!)
I'm particularly happy to find these, because I felt bad about not being able to report the Dinner (on February 5th) in honor of the nuptials of Miss Rose Zucker, of Kingston and
Mr. David Schemp, of Schenectady, who were married next day at Temple Emanuel.
In addition to the happy couple and Mrs. Harry Schemp, who hosted the party, guests were: Marguerite and Frank Baker; Ralph Fuller; Arlene and Herb Gertner; Lori Gerner; Terry Gertner; Kathleen Higle; Jay Higle; Mrs. A. W.
Mollotti; Helen and Fred Schemp. My apologies for this delay in wishing the David Schemps a long and happy wedded life.

And how about the annual Pot Hunters Dinner, hosted by Martha and George Zidro (of Ye Olde Park Diner)? The other guests were Amelia Berardi, Ginny and Jack Darwak, Thelma and Buddy Prusack,
and George Zanos. Wrote Martha and George: "Pheasants deliciously prepared; Service
excellent; Drinks Superb; Papa Joe's attention up to his usual great standard." One thing, folks: Maybe you ought to change the name of the "Club"
"Pot" hunters has a different connotation these days.

Then there was the "Second Annual Dinner" of the Smooth Sailing Organ Club celebrating
"One year of happy companionship, shared by love of Music and Good Eating."
(they came to the right place for both!). Among those pleasant: Evelyn and William Harcourt, of Ulster Park; Clara Morris, of New Paltz; Laverne and Harvey Short, of Highland; Hank Tromley, (President) of Milton; Wanda and George Wright, of Marble-town. Comment: "Excellent!"
Many shared laughs. Planning our next dinner here in the near future.

And not to forget the Birthday Party for Charlene Ferraro, with place cards for Mr. Keith Diehl, of Coxsack; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ferraro and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Stafford, of Kingston. After all, a gal has a birthday only once a year (if that!).

BACK TO THE PRESENT!
Speaking of Birthdays, they seemed to be the rage last week, with at least three cele-brative parties on the premises. In alphabetical order, they were: Margaret Amatiano, of Bloomington, attended by Viny and Theo Amatiano, of Kingston; Ann and Fred Berdenhaus, Frank Berdenhaus, Fred Berdenhaus, and Diane and Dick Slight, all of Bloomington.  Mrs. Arnold Baratta . . . celebrated by Mr.
and Mrs. Richard Andermill,
Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Baratta, and Mr. and Mrs. Wade Bolde, all of Poughkeepsie. Incidentally, I'm pleased at the number of Poughkeepsians we get here. Maybe the reason is revealed from the Baratta comment: "Meal and service excellent; will recommend it to our friends."  And the Birthday Party for Charlie Benicase . . . a well-attended affair. When asked to list the guests, Charlie wrote: "Are you kidding? When the Beni-case family gets together, who counts? We needed a special place to celebrate a special occasion. Nuff Said!" Anyway
I can report that the party hosted by his Daughter and Son-in-Law, Mr. and Mrs.

Richard Dooley, and their children; and that the "Special Guests" and "Guest of Honor" were Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cascarelli and Mrs. Julie Columbo, of Philadelphia.

And before space runs out,
I must mention the Installation Dinner of Arlene Ernst
they were. So I'm not neat!)
In addition to the "Ladies"
Auxiliary of the St. Remy Fire Department. In addition to the "installees" guests were: Jennie Blake, Mary Dawson, Teddy Libbos, Joan Light, Clare
Rose Zucker, of Kingston and Moxham, Vi Moxham, Beverly O'Brien, Grace Schoonmaker, Germaine Scism, Linda Sober, Lorraine Theiss and Helen Zaborski. "Dinner was enjoyed by all."

THE COMMERCIAL

As they say on TV . . .
we'll be right back after this word from the Sponsor:
"Good Evening, Friends!
Are you planning any kind of celebrative party . . . hm-m-m?
Do you want to acknowledge another milestone . . . natal or nuptial . . . hm-m-m? Do you want to convene 10 or 100 associates to install a new President, retire a faithful co-worker, honor the School Principal or celebrate your Bowling Team's win of the Kegler's Cup . . . hm-m-m?
Waste no time or thought,
Friends; take no chances on what you will get for the money you spend . . . be it $4.00 a head or more . . . be it Luncheon or Dinner or Super! Know that when you hold that Party at Roberto's, you are going to get the Uti-mate in Atmosphere, Cuisine, Service and Value; know that holding your Party at Roberto's is like taking out insurance for its success.

Be smart, friends. Stop by Roberto's (maybe for a festive Luncheon . . . thus killing two stones with one bird) and see how much more you'll get for your money; or call me and discuss the party, and ask for our PRINTED PARTY PRICE PROGRAM! If you can't make it at Luncheon, how about Cocktail Hour, Dinner or at the Evening Session in The Cocktail Lounge? Your Time Is My Time. (And if you remember him singing that . . . Dearie, You're Much Older Than I.) Kidding aside (but I wasn't kidding about the superiority of Roberto's for any occasion
where Good Food, Good Service and Good Time is in order) . . . any table, from two up, is a Party at Roberto's.

Ernie

P.S.: Lots of great comment on the music of the VAL FURY TRIO, now holding forth in the Lounge. Who said that good music ever goes out of style . . . For Listening, for Dancing, for Sing-Along? Test-listen the lads . . . Tonight or Tomorrow!

Easter is right around the corner. Make your reservations cial menu at Regular Prices.

Your Horoscope

Saturday, March 25

GENERAL TENDENCIES:
Until noon you can get much of value done, especially in using intuition to better understand what your companions expect of you. After midday, very different influences come into effect and you would be wise to retire from the world of positive action and work on improving your appearance and wardrobe.
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)
The early part of the day can be most active and happy at whatever duties you have to perform, but take care you do not get into arguments in p.m. You can spend money foolishly if you do not keep your purse zipped. Take care.
TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20)
The early part of the day is best to improve situations at home, but don't try to do it in the evening, or big rumpus can start. Get busy with the paint brush and other activities to cheer things up a bit. Show you are optimistic where the future is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)
The day hours are best for whatever it is you have to do since you could meet up with some accident in p.m. unless careful, so plan to get as much done as you can during day. Go over your letters and see that the wording is right. Ditto for statements, etc.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21)
Your judgment is better during the day than at night, so make the right decisions early. Take the time to attend to repairs that are necessary. Make your home really charming and clean.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)
Get work done during the day and then plan to attend some nice social affair in p.m. Dress well. Do not argue with one who is looking for a whipping boy. Smile and all works out fine.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)
Morning is best time to go after the information you want in a confidential way, or you could meet with criticism later on. Serve those who are not as lucky as you. Show that you have real poise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)
Making plans with allies is best in a.m. since they are apt to be less cooperative later in the day, when you had better work alone. Avoid social matters, or there will be arguments. Enjoy family instead.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)
The early part of the day is best for handling affairs in the business world, especially those that are truly vital. Adverse conditions could arise in p.m., but if so, handle them quietly and well.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)
Don't resort to violence. Take care of personal correspondence in a.m. and don't forget to make those important telephone calls, either. Not a good day for making radical changes or starting on some trip. Care and caution are the keynote now.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
Get duties done efficiently in a.m. and then quietly play, read or whatever really relaxes you. Mate could be in a blue mood so do not expect much fun in that direction. Treat kindly, though.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
You can easily find out what your true position is with others in a.m. and do nothing that can bring ill will. Control your temper since others are apt to be in a negative frame of mind. Call good friends on the telephone tonight.
PISCES (Feb. 10 to Mar. 20)
The a.m. is the best time to delve into any new projects you have in mind, but don't take others into your confidence. Your hunches are most accurate, but even these should be kept to yourself. Show devotion to mate in p.m.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of this highly sensitive people who will absorb whatever the surrounding conditions may be and become morose if they are not up to expectations, so get busy now and make conditions at home more ideal and successful. Your child can become most successful if encouraged by you in the big ideas that are a natural part of this mentality. Send to college of own choice.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

SHORT HAIR: (Q.) My best friend's mother doesn't like long hair on boys. She cuts his hair and she cuts it very short. This depresses him.
I have fairly long hair. So do most of the boys we know. I have tried several times to reason with his mother about how short his hair is. Every time she gets mad. What can I do to convince her that she should let him wear his hair as long as he wants it.—A True Friend in Texas.
(A.) As you no doubt know if you read Teen Forum regularly, I believe a boy should be able to wear his hair the way he wants it—if it is kept neat and clean and not TOO long. But in this case I think you are the one who is making too big a thing of it. It is a matter for your friend and his mother. Let them handle it. By butting in you may be hurting him more than you are helping him.
HOMEWORK: (Q.) I can't keep my mind on my homework. I sing or daydream. I even fool around. I have some important exams coming up. Please help me.—On the Spot in Ohio.
(A.) Plan study sessions carefully. Have a quiet, comfortable place to work. Collect books and other materials beforehand. Set a time to start and a time to stop. Use that time for study. No phone calls, no wandering around, no music, no wasting time. Just study, concentrated study.
When the time is up, close your books and reward yourself with a good TV show, or a piece of cake, or a session on the telephone.
Adopt this businesslike system for all your study—not just exam time—and you will be in control of your homework rather than it being in control of you.

Patricia Neal... Easy to Like

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Patricia Neal came to town this week to narrate an upcoming network television special about medical problems of American women—and few other persons could gain as much audience respect on this matter.

For Miss Neal, one of our loveliest and most talented actresses, fought back heroically after being a stroke victim, and has resumed her career with skill and grace. Sitting with her in her room at the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel in Beverly Hills, it was easy to see why she is such a favorite of moviegoers.

The special she came to town to narrate and promote is called "Life, Death and the American Woman," and will be broadcast on ABC-TV for an hour April 27. Produced with the participation of the National Institutes of Health, it concerns such medical conditions as pregnancy, menopause, sickle cell anemia, heart disease and cancer of the breast and cervix. "My work didn't take long," said the down-to-earth, unassuming Miss Neal, puffing on a cigarette. "We did it in one day. I appear three times, and we did that in the morning, the afternoon we did the narration. It's so exhausting to do that sort of thing. You begin to not so good."

Playing down her own past illness, Miss Neal said of her participation in the documentary: "Well, I got the offer, and I think it's important to put on such programs... though there's nothing about strokes in it, I think I understand matters because I know people affected in various ways, and being a career woman I understand that kind of problem."

Miss Neal has lived in England for some years and is married to noted British writer Ronald Dahl. But, says the director, the producer and the actors. "She seemed very happy recalling the play, in which she portrayed a sturdy, solid, salt-of-the-earth woman—the kind of woman who has retained her Kentucky essence, and made it her strength, and heartwarming Christmas story about a rural family in England."

Of the experience, she said: "I loved the writer, the director, the producer and the actors." Richardson Defends Antibusing Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Education Secretary Elliot L. Richardson went before a doubting Senate Education subcommittee today to defend President Nixon's proposals to end busing and concentrate federal spending on poor-school areas.

Today's hearing is expected to be the first of a lengthy series by various congressional panels on the legislation Nixon sent to Capitol Hill last Monday.

The Education panel is considering that part of the package dealing with $2.5 billion and with the guidelines Nixon proposed for shutting off further busing orders.

The proposed one-year moratorium on such orders is separate legislation that was sent to the Judiciary Committee.

As the fourth part of his antibusing program, Nixon said he would order the Justice Department to intervene in select court cases in which he concluded that judges had gone too far in ordering busing.

Justice made the first move under that directive Thursday, asking a District Court judge to delay action in the Detroit desegregation case until Congress considers Nixon's moratorium.

Such a delay, the motion said, "will contribute to the orderly resolution of the matters before the court."

Judge Stephen J. Roth ruled last Sept. 27 that the Detroit school system was segregated. He is considering several desegregation plans, some of which probably would involve extensive busing.

The Education subcommittee is dominated by liberals with strong civil-rights inclinations who long have supported busing where it is considered necessary to end a segregated school system.

Many of them were highly critical of Nixon's message in advance of Richardson's appearance.

They said the guidelines he proposed to bar any further busing orders are very likely unconstitutional and, in any event, might well stop or roll back the substantial progress made in dismantling dual school systems.

As for the $2.5 billion, they emphasized that this would be simply a rejuggling of funds already voted on by Congress.

and without a dime of new money.

If the President wants a substantial improvement in inner-city schools with large numbers of children from poor homes, they contend, he is going to have to ask for far more money.

For example, they pointed out, $1.5 billion of the $2.5 billion comes from Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

This money was designated to improve educational opportunity for underprivileged children from the time the act was passed in 1965.

But, these senators said, although Nixon has asked $1.5 billion under his title, Congress has authorized $7 billion annually for it. To make a real dent in the problem, the liberals say, Nixon must ask for a much bigger proportion of the authorization than the 20 percent he now is seeking.

Red China to Have UN Undersecretary

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations is about to get its first undersecretary-general from Communist China, diplomatic sources reported today.

The sources said Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and the Chinese had agreed that Peking's first representative in the U.N. secretariat's top echelon would head the department that deals with trusteeship and nonself-governing territories.

But it is being expanded to deal with colonialism and such related problems as racial conflicts in Rhodesia and South Africa.

The Chinese requested the colonialism post, it was reported. Their request was in line with their desire, expressed when they joined the United Nations, to associate themselves with the so-called Third World, between the Soviet bloc and the United States and its allies.

The top posts in the U.N. secretariat are distributed geographically and include an undersecretary-general from each of the five permanent members of the Security Council—the Soviet Union, China, the United States, France and Britain.

The identity of the new Chinese undersecretary-general is expected to be disclosed next Tuesday when Waldheim announces the composition of his reorganized cabinet.

At one point the People's Republic of China was reported interested in filling the vacancy left by the death of Ralph J. Bunche, highest ranking American in the secretariat and an undersecretary for special affairs.

The latest word is that Bunche's assistant, Brian Urquhart, a Briton, will be promoted to the rank of assistant secretary-general and that Roberto E. Guery of Argentina would be the only undersecretary for special political affairs.

One of the jobs under consideration by the United States was undersecretary for General Assembly affairs, a post once held by Andrew W. Cordier, who also served as executive assistant to the first two secretaries-general, Trygve Lie and Dag Hammarskjöld.

Informed sources said Ambassador George Bush is discussing names with Waldheim, but no one has been agreed upon.

Man Accused in YMCA Fatal Fire

NEW YORK (UPI)—A man who allegedly said he turned in the alarm which alerted authorities to a fire in the Sloane House YMCA was arrested Thursday and charged with homicide in the blaze which killed four persons in the co-ed residence.

Fire officials arrested Francisco Ramos, 27, a porter at the transient hotel, after talking to more than 350 persons. Ramos was the last person interviewed about the blaze which also injured 29 civilians and 15 firemen Wednesday night.

According to fire marshals, Ramos was planning to loot valuables from hall lockers on the seventh floor when a match he was using in the darkened area burned his finger and he dropped it.

The match ignited some papers and Ramos attempted to stamp the fire out but was frightened off when he heard something coming, the fire officials quoted Ramos as saying.

To avoid detection Ramos ran down to the basement via a fire tower staircase and waited until he heard someone say a fire was in progress.

The suspect then ran to a nearby firebox and pulled the alarm, waiting for the fire apparatus which he directed to the building, according to the story allegedly obtained from Ramos.

The fire was confined to the seventh floor where all the victims died. Two of them were identified as Lawyer Thurman, 73, and Nicholas Rossi. They and the two unidentified victims left their rooms and went out into the hallway where they died.

Twenty-two persons were rescued by aerial ladders from ledges on the 14-story building where they crouched yelling for help.

Others remained safely in their rooms or made their way to the ground floor by stairway or elevator.

The most seriously injured among the residents was Samuel Pitts, 40, who fell three stories trying to escape the fire. He was reported in critical condition at Bellevue Hospital.

Green Haven Prisoners Elect Liaison Members

STORMVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Inmates of Green Haven Correctional Facility, a maximum security prison, will join those of four other prisons April 21 in having a liaison council with the prison administration.

Leon Vincent, who takes over as superintendent April 1 when John Zelker retires, Thursday announced the elections of the council, informally known as a grievance committee, Attica, Clinton, Auburn and Elmira state prisons already have chosen their councils.

Vincent was deputy superintendent at Attica, across the state in Wyoming County, during last September's uprising that left 43 persons, including 32 prisoners, dead.

"I think this is going to give (the prisoners) ample representation," Vincent said Thursday.

"and I can't see where there's even a need for a so-called prisoners' union."

The proposed union, a suggestion by outside labor and legal groups and citizens organizations, has been approved by about half the Green Haven population.

The state is still pondering the legal ramifications of the proposal.

The U. S. Court of Appeals Thursday granted the state a temporary stay of a district court order that would permit delivery of Legal Aid Society mail about the union to Stormville inmates. Argument of the formal appeal was scheduled for the week of April 10 in New York City.

Vincent said the council elections would be handled on a cellblock basis and the group would meet at least monthly.

Peekskill Man Shot to Death

PEEKSKILL, N.Y. (AP) — A 65-year-old liquor store owner was shot dead in front of his store Thursday night as he pursued two would-be holdup men.

The holdup men escaped after a wild auto chase by police through Croton-on-Hudson and Ossining at speeds of more than 100 miles an hour.

Peekskill Detective Sgt. James Nelson said no money was taken in the holdup attempt and the would-be robbers apparently fled after David Kagan, proprietor of the Monument Wine and Liquor Store, grappled with them.

As Kagan ran out of the store to pursue the fleeing men, Nelson said one man turned and fired one shot, killing Kagan instantly.

Police gave chase, but the fleeing men eluded them, Nelson said, by crossing a divider and turning south. The car was found abandoned in Ossining about an hour later, Nelson said.
